Just put Linuxspace.net back online after being offline for 3 months due to hackers. I have upped the security a bit, but we'll see how we go. It uses the same commenting system and Captcha system as I use on this site. I have a rolling backup incase it does get hit, but I feel pretty confident that the updates will hold out.

The next on the list of to do's is update the OS of this box to Fedora 9 or 10, which just came out last week ... Sorry, I mean, got released last week.
