Just completed another clip, but this time just some shots around the yard while we had some rain. The rain turned to hail, and the Nasturtium leaf got hammered and is no more. This is the same storm that wreaked havoc in Melbourne on the 6th of March.

The music is by Shardik's Walkman and is called " Rainscape ". Released under the creative commons license. Check him out at Jamendo and you will see he also does an extended version of this track as well. He comes from Berlin, Germany and I came accross him when he gave me a friend request on Jamendo.

Editing done with Kdenlive and Avidemux . The rain sound clip was extracted from the video clips and fixed up in Audacity . I actually did two 150 second tracks with combination's from the clips and then exported with them both mixed in Audacity , it seems to give the rain sound a bit more depth. The final audio mix was done with Kdenlive.

I am hoping to put a small collection of clips of the storm later and post it next week. We got quite a bit of water down our street.
